“Living in this house with a family of four, the priority was to create as much space as possible.”

DAVID BURTON ARCHITECT

26

27

26 Open-plan living was a solution for this architect and owner, who needed to create more space for his family. The kitchen and dining room flow into the living room. This allows his two sons to play close to their parents without being underfoot or out of sight.

Architect: David Burton, Williams Burton Architects, North Adelaide, SA; (08) 8223 1177.

27 While this bedroom has a classic look, it's a departure from the over-scaled and over-stuffed style that many designers employ for the main bedroom suite. The interior designer has taken traditional elements and given them an elegant but modern twist. The Louis XV mirrors, for example, are complemented by the pair of bedside tables, all from The Country Trader.

Interior designer: Lynda Kerry Design, Double Bay, NSW; (02) 9327 3085.
