31 A 1970s Adelaide terrace underwent a smart reconfiguration to create this serene master bedroom, which now occupies the whole first floor frontage, with ensuite and dressing room behind. WHY IT WORKS Facing north-east, the bedroom enjoys lovely light and picturesque views over a park. Furnishings and storage were factored in from the beginning. "The bed has a soft upholstered bedhead and integrated bedside tables, sweeping around the corner to a shelving unit," says architect David Burton. The raked ceiling was re-lined with limed plywood battens in a nod to the home's '70s roots and a lowered bulkhead was created across the window line to accommodate blinds, curtains and uplighting. OWNER'S VERDICT "An amazing sense of spaciousness and peace has been created for us. We love the relaxed decor, and the ceiling is a winner." >
